Snow, Sleet Stall Traffic In City Area

BAD DRIVING FORECAST FOR NEXT 2 DAYS

Grades, Curves Are Danger Spots; Weatherman Says More Ice Coming.

Light snow which fell in the Mansfield area throughout this morning gave motorists their first bad driving of the winter season, and the weatherman saw little chance for improvement for another day or two. The snow turned to sleet before noon.

Cars and trucks stalled on grades in most sections of Mansfield this morning before city workmen could get to all the slippery spots with salt and cinders.

Despite the slippery driving, only a few minor accidents were reported in Mansfield and there were no injuries attributed to the bad traffic conditions.

Spread Cinders, Salt.

Street Supt. C. H. Hebel said three trucks were out late last night spreading salt and cinders on danger spots. They were to spread 15 tons of salt on main thoroughfares today.

Meanwhile, the weatherman had more bad news for motorists. He said light snow probably would change to rain tonight. Then it will be colder tomorrow with more snow probable.

Temperatures ranged from 20 to 32 degrees in Ohio today. Mansfield's low was 20.

The cold was easing a little in the states to north and west. North Dakota and Minnesota cities reported readings of 10 and 12 above zero. Freezing rain was falling over Illinois and Iowa and there was a chance it might move into Ohio.

Floods swept over Washington and Oregon. From one to four inches of snow fell from Montana to Michigan.

JAP BRUTALITY LAID TO TOJO

TOKYO—(INS)—The blame for Japan's insensate brutality against British and other Allied war prisoners was laid directly at the door today of Hideki Tojo—the "Pearl Harbor premier."

Australian Prosecutor A. J. Mansfield told the international war crimes tribunal that Tojo was responsible for what he called Japan's "policy" of mistreatment of war prisoners and civilian internees.

The prosecutor said that 25 per cent of Japanese-held British war prisoners were killed or died in captivity in contrast to a 5 per cent casualty rate among Britishers captured by the other Axis nations—Germany and Italy.

Mansfield mentioned a dozen of the 27 defendants now on trial in Tokyo for war crimes but pinned the major guilt for excessive death rates on Tojo, accused of planning Japan's bid for control of the Orient.

The prosecutor asserted:

"There will be proof of an announcement made by him (Tojo) that Japan would not observe provisions of the 1929 Geneva prisoner-of-war convention. He (Tojo) personally gave instructions to heads of prisoner-of-war camps which violated the rules of war."

THREATENS REPRISALS

JERUSALEM — (INS) — Irgun Zvei Leumi threatened reprisals today against British officers if sentence against a Jewish youth convicted of a bank holdup in Jaffa is carried out. The 16-year-old boy was sentenced to 18 years imprisonment and 18 strokes with a birch whip.

Chief Warns Of Christmas Fire Danger

A warning against use of paper Christmas decorations was issued today by Fire Chief L. J. Steele who reminded party organizers of the Cocoanut Grove holocaust at Boston several years ago.

"The seriousness of that fire resulted from the extreme fire hazard lying in the use of decorations made of paper and other flimsy materials," she chief said.

Steele's warning came after several organizations had asked him about the use of such materials.

"There is no 'safe use' of paper," he said. "Decorations made of fireproof material—asbestos—are the only safe ones."

Steele warned that piles of tissue paper discarded from wrapped gifts also constituted a fire hazard.

He asked all groups staging organized parties with decorations or Christmas trees to call the fire department and have the premises and decorations inspected.

PISTOL-PACKING ROLLER SKATER HELD BY POLICE

Loaded German .38 Found in His Possession.

Police today held for investigation a 2-year-old pistol packing roller skater.

He was arrested Saturday night at the Coliseum roller rink.

Officers said the youth, a veteran, carried a loaded German-made, .38 caliber pistol in a holster underneath his coat.

The automatic pistol, known to servicemen as a "P-38", had six shells in it, and the youth had a clip of eight other shells in his pocket, police said.

He told police that he carried the pistol because "somebody on Second street had been shooting at him," officers said. A friend, however told officers that the youth carried it "so no one would steal it."

Coming to Mansfield from Pennsylvania about a month ago, the youth gave an East Second street address as his home here.

Arresting officers said they were preparing to file charges of carrying a concealed weapon against the youth today.

They said he was discovered carrying the pistol by another skater who noticed the large "bulge" under his coat and spotted the pistol when the youth was in the process of buying a bottle of pop.

Vets Prefer Warm Sea To Cold World

BALTIMORE—(AP)—Four navy veterans who "think the world is in a mess," were on their way today on a cruise to the West Indies "to get away from everything until it settles down."

The four men, all in their early twenties sailed on an appropriately named 35-foot schooner, Utopia II. Their only plans are to sail to Florida on the inland waterway and then cruise among the West Indies for the next six months or a year.

Brian B. Dunne, jr., 22-year-old former navy ensign from Pasadena, Cal., was the spokesman for the crew, which he emphasized has no captain.

"We think the world is in a mess and we want to get away from everything until it settles down," Dunne explained. "Labor troubles, shortages and general unrest have things topsy-turvey."

Brian said he and his California Institute roommate, Rick C. Honey of Portland, Ore., planned the cruise after reading Richard Maury's "The Saga of China." They were joined by Richard's brother, David, and Macy M. Hallock of Medina, Ohio.

Ohioan Faces 2 Murder Charges

EAST LIVERPOOL — (INS) — Charges were to be made in East Liverpool today against a 38-year-old brick yard employe in connection with the double slaying of his wife and another man.

Police Chief Hugh McDermott said that Erwin Brown was held after the death of his wife, Mrs. Beulah Brown, 30, the mother of two children, and Brady Fetty, 52, a potter.

U. N. Boosts Peace Hopes As Assembly Session Ends

TOP DIPLOMATS AGREE ON NEED OF ARMS CUTS

World Delegates Start Home, Leaving Program in Hands of Security Council.

By JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The United Nations assembly turned over to the 11-member security council today the monumental task of setting into motion a program for reducing the armies of the world and destroying the mass destructive weapons of war.

Ending an historic eight-weeks' session at 12:44 a. m. (EST), the top diplomats of 54 nations gave the world its first concrete hope of outlawing war and then headed home after writing another chapter in man's long search for peace.

The next regular meeting will be held in New York next Sept. 16, but the assembly may be called into special session in six months to approve world-wide arms reductions which the security council is to plan in detail.

In the vaulted gold-and-blue assembly hall at Flushing Meadow Park, the world's diplomats gave a solemn pledge that their countries would support immediate steps to reduce their armed forces and prohibit use of the atomic bomb.

This was regarded as the most significant achievement of the assembly, which met in the United States for the first time and selected a Manhattan skyscraper site for its permanent home.

* * *

Unanimity Grows.

But almost equally as significant was the attainment of virtually unanimous agreement among delegates, a unanimity that had been conspicously lacking since the United Nations was born.

For the first time since hostilities ended, delegates agreed there was an increase in cooperative spirit between Soviet Russia and the western powers.

There was evidence in some respects of a softening of Russian policy and the diminishing of Soviet suspicions. Delegates agreed generally that U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes contributed greatly to this by disclosing voluntarily the number and position of American troops on foreign soil — information that Russia fought unsuccessfully to have every nation give to the U. N.

This advancement in Uniaed Nations relations was keynoted by Warren R. Austin, chief of the U. S. delegation in the closing hours of the session.

"Starting with the inter and paper charter," Austin told fellow delegates, "we progressed from positive disagreement and skepticism as to the solution of the great problems confronting us, to a newly discovered harmony — to almost unanimous agreement. I think that we have established the essential reality of the United Nations."

And in tribute to the small nations, Austin declared that "the assembly has proved its power to promote unanimous agreement among the great nations on these

RENT CEILING ATTACK LOOMS

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A new, all-out attack on rent ceilings appeared likely today as the government put into operation a housing program accenting decontrol and private enterprise.

The new program takes the lid off prices on new dwellings, relaxes ceilings on new rental units and allows non-veterans to build for their own use.

In some business circles, these provisions were held as the opening wedge for removal or extensive relaxation of rent controls on existing dwellings.

This sentiment was based on the theory that housing costs in general are bound to rise, and that present hold-the-line rent controls will not be able to stand the pressure.

The administration's new approach to housing marks the end of former expeditor Wilson Wyatts's top associates who charged the program is only a "fold up operation."

Norton E. Long, assistant housing administrator, said he and other assistants of Wyatt had remained with the housing agency at Wyatt's request "to see what could be salvaged" but he decided to quit after studying the new program.

Long said that 10 of the 12 points advanced by the program whittled down the Wyatt plans and that the other two failed to add anything.

The program was drafted at a series of White House conferences between President Truman and his top advisers, including the new expediter, Frank R. Creedon, whose ideas are believed reflected by the policy.

700 MISSIONARIES LEAVE FOR ORIENT

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Seven hundred Protestant missionaries—the largest group to leave the United States in a single group—were en route to duty in the Orient today.

Their ship, the Marine Lynx, left San Francisco yesterday.

The ship is scheduled to dock at Shanghai Jan. 2 and will then proceed to Hong Kong and Manila.

Rush To Mail Yule Gifts and Greeting Cards Opens

The rush to mail Christmas gifts and greetings card blossomed into full bloom today.

Acting Postmaster Curtis Ford explained it.

"Over the week-end," he said, people had time to get letters and packages ready for mailing, so this morning the postoffice is overflowing with both.

"We began taking the overflaw down to the armory last Friday and will continue on through Christmas season."

He announced a Christmas mailing schedule to begin Tuesday and continue through Friday.

Stamp and parcel post windows will be open from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m. and registry window from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m.

The Saturday schedule will be announced later, Ford said.

ADMITS TAKING $1,500 PAYROLL

Lyall E Lewis, 32, former Pennsylvania railroad baggage clerk, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to a charge of embezzlement and was bound over to the grand jury under $1,500 bond.

Lewis, who disappeared Oct. 19 with a $1,200 railroad payroll, was picked up by New York police last Thursday on a fugitive warrant.

He was arraigned in felony court in New York Friday, and waived extradiction. He was brought to Mansfield over the week-end.

Lewis, who lived at 148 Pleasant avenue, failed to show up at a Mansfield bank on the day of his disappearance after he had been given a $1,205 payroll.

FAMED NEW YORK POLICEMAN DIES

NEW YORK — (UP) — Lewis J. Valentine, 64, who rose from the ranks as a cop on the local beat to become one of the nation's leading criminologists, died today of a liver ailment.

His last and greatest wish had not yet been fulfilled—the observance of a nation-wide crime prevention week—a project which he had fostered ever since his retirement as New York police commissioner in September, 1945, and advocated in his weekly broadcast, 'Gang Busters."

After his retirement Valentine, at the request of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, went to Japan to reorganize and start a police training program for the Japanese police force.

Events Repeat For Motorist and Officer

Vernon Owens of Pavonia, did it again. And so did Patrolman Charles Condon.

In December, 1945, Owens was arrested by Condon on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Yesterday, Condon booked Owens on the same charge, plus that of driving while his license was suspended.

In municipal court today, Owens pleaded guilty to both charges.

On the charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol he was fined $100 and costs and his right to drive was revoked for three years.

On the charge of driving while his license was suspended, Owens drew a 10-day county jail sentence.

Ohio Pastor Says Fight's Not Over

PITTSBURGH — (UP) — Rev. Robert K. Russell told a suburban Mt. Lebanon congregation that Steubenville, O., is a closed town today and that the ministerial association intends to "keep it that way."

The First United Presbyterian church pastor intimated that the group of 12 clergymen who launched an all-out drive to clean up Steubenville eight weeks ago after a series of three shootings plan to throw some pay-off punches in their crusade.

Luzon Plane Crash Fatal To Twelve

MANILA—(UP)—The far eastern air transport line announced today that 12 persons were killed and two injured Saturday when a two-motored DC3 transport plane crashed on Mount Banahao in southern Luzon.

The pilot was an American, Roy E. Wilson, New York. He was hospitalized at Santo Tomas for shock and contusions. The dead were all Philippines residents, including the stewardess.

Suspect 'Arrests' Himself

Leslie G. Fye, 32, of the Phoenix hotel, will explain his triple troubles in municipal court tomorrow morning.

But police are grateful. Fye practically arrested himself.

Fye was picked up late Saturday night and booked on three charges, including one of leaving the scene of an accident.

When police completed their investigation, however, they learned that Fye was driving with an outdated Missouri license and had California plates on his car which belonged to another auto.

* * *

IN MUNICIPAL COURT TOday he pleaded guilty to all charges and was fined $5 and costs on two license violations; driving without an operator's license and failing to register a motor vehicle.

On the charge of leaving the scene of an accident his bond was set at $500 and hearing continued until tomorrow.

Officers said that a car Fye was driving collided with one driven by M. J. Duncan, 90 Henry street.

* * *

AFTER THE COLLISION AT Harker and Bowman streets, officers said, Fye fled the scene, leaving his car behind.

Police picked up the trail when Fye called headquarters to report his car as stolen. Officers said they found this to be untrue, however, and Fye was booked on the three charges.

They said the entire front end of Duncan's car and the entire front side of Fye's auto were damaged.

GERMAN SPLIT COSTLY TO U. S.,

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate war investigating committee has learned that it probably will cost American taxpayers $171,000,000 next year to feed the U. S.-occupied zone of Germany while the Russian-controlled area eats homegrown food at no cost to Moscow.

Statements gathered by committee counsel George Meader during a three-week trip to Europe laid the blame for this situation on the failure of attempts to unify Germany economically under terms of the 1945 Potsdam Big Three agreement.

Blaming the French for blocking plans to set up central German administrative services, the statements obtained by Meader from army of occupation and military government authorities said the United States had been forced to stop the dismantling of German plants for reparations—most of which would go to Russia—because of the threatened financial drain on this country.

Beyond that, the statements indicated that even if economic unification of Germany were brought about immediately it might take two years for the Germans to become sufficiently self supporting to require no further food shipments from the United States.

TOO ORDERLY, SAYS BLOCK OF GERMANS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— German addiction to orderliness and efficiency may hamper American plans to democratize the Reich, Paul Block, jr., co-publisher of the Toledo Blade, told the Associated Press editors of Ohio at their fall meeting yesterday.

One of a group of publishers who recently toured the occupied zones of Germany, Italy and Austria, Block said the Germans were too impatient and wanted efficiency at the expense of democratic liberty. They consider democracy wasteful, he declared.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—John Vintila, 18-year-old State university student missing six days, was expected home by his parents today after being located in Clinton, Okla.

B'Nai Jacob Congregation Votes Modernization Of Its Services

The membership of the B'Nai Jacob congregation of Mansfield has voted unanimously to change from Orthodox to Conservative Judaism, A. L. Cousins, president of the congregation, announced today.

The change, which was termed a "modernization" of ritual and other services, has been a trend of modern Jewish synagogues, Cousins said.

Fire Chief Prepares Hospital Proposals

MANSFIELD NEWS-JOURNAL

MONDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1946 TELEPHONE 4251-6 PAGE ELEVEN

Winchell — On Broadway

One of the stories many of Damon Runyon's intimates didn't know was this one. . . . I read it in a magazine over a year ago. Then I said: "Looka here, Daddy. How come you never told me I helped discover the 'new' Runyon? That piece about you makes me feel good, Pop!" . . . Damon merely shrugged. . . . "I wrote it because I needed some money," he explained. . . . Nevertheless, it was his first fiction and it led to countless others. . . . Movie scenarios, books, plays, anthologies, etc. All of which totalled more than a million smackers. But just before he wrote that first piece Damon Runyon believed he was washed up, done, through, dry.

* * *

It started this way. . . . I mean I read it in that piece about him. . . . Damon (after a few decades at the typewriter) suddenly felt that The Paradise Was Passing Him By. . . . That newcomers were better. . . . That he was a has-been, etc. . . . All this was in the early 30s—about 1931 or 32, perhaps. . . . He couldn't sit down and write about the fights at the Garden or elsewhere—because "I can see what's coming next" . . . He hated the phony wrassling matches, the guys who said the same things before each event and so on. . . . He apparently was tired of the strain—the sameness—or just being a sports writer—even though he was rated champ of his division. He wanted to reach out. . . . And write a book or a show. . . . He had contributed handsomely to literature with his verse about Jockey Sande: "Gimme a handy guy like Sande bootin' those winners home!" Was it home or in? I'm not sure.

* * *

Anyway, Damon (I'm quoting that mag story, don't forget) just "couldn't write" a column, a line or anything. . . . He stayed out of print for many weeks. Just sat around Lindy's or went to a movie or kibitz'd a card game or swapped opinions with the midtown wisenheimers. . . . He "couldn't write" anymore. He was sure he couldn't. . . . He even stopped trying.

* * *

Then one 3 or 4 in the yawning (restless in the hay) he got up and went to his portable. . . . In an hour or so he finished the first piece of copy he had started in several months. . . . He wasn't sure how good (or bad) it was. . . . He liked it because he had fun doing it. . . . But he wouldn't lay the odds that it would click with any editor. . . . So he sent it to his friend Van Loan—then bossing Cosmopolitan, a Hearst mag. . . . "Tell me what you think, Van," memo'd Damon. "It's the first fiction I ever tried. But don't kid me, please!"

Van phoned him at once. "Do a dozen of those a year for Cosmo!" he said excitedly. "I'm sending over a check for $1,000." (He wound up getting $5,000 an article.)

* * *

Runyon sat there (phone off the hook) dazed with joy. . . . He needed that "G" too. He had settled "all he had" on his first wife, and was broke. . . . (Incidentally, the last few items came from Damon directly when we discussed this "new Runyon") . . . The title of that first piece is: "Romance of the Roaring Forties" . . . It is a hilarious hort-short about a Broadway columnist (who got caught fooling around a gangster's doll!) . . . The name of Runyon's columnist-hero is Waldo Winchester.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—A few days ago a startling story broke in the papers under an Atlanta dateline concerning a secret organization called the Columbians, which appears to be anti-semitic and anti-Negro. At worst it is a rather juvenile group and quite small, for it claimed only 5,400 members and those who exposed it said it had only 500.

The "break" of the news story was contrived in dramatic fashion, revealing a professional touch. The only ground for the startling allegations was the "confessions" of two young backsliders, 18 and 21. On the basis of the printed allegations, I doubt that anyone will be convicted of a crime and I note particularly that no crimes were charged and no arrests were made.

If this is a sinister and dangerous organization, however, it obviously is petty by comparison with the outfit which arranged the expose.

That organization is the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi league of New York. It was organized in 1933 to boycott Hitler's Germany and, by other means, to oppose the rise of Hitlerism. In the years since, it has become, by its own boast in the Atlanta case, a secret, private espionage system. It plants its agents in positions of trust in private employment to filch confidential information and betray it to the league and to photograph private correspondence and other documents for any purpose that suits the individuals who run the league. It is reasonably comparable to the German Gestapo and the late Russian G.P.U.

* * *

THE ACTIVE director of the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi league is James H. Sheldon, of New York, known as "Doctor" Sheldon. He was active in the League Against War and Fascism, which the Dies committee classified as a Communist front in the United States. One purpose of this league was to stop the manufacture of munitions and other materials for war, by violent methods. It does not appear that Sheldon himself is or ever was a Communist. But, like many others, he has become an inveterate committeeman and executive director of "activities."

The president of the league is Herman Hoffman and the treasurer is Isidore Lipschutz. Lipschutz is a refugee diamond broker from Belgium who appears to be either a rich man in his own right or to have large financial backing.

The day after the news of the league's coup in Atlanta, I telephoned the office of the league in New York to ask information. A woman who answered the phone asked me to wait a minute and, after a little more delay than seemed necessary to refer a call, and sufficient delay to permit a tracer to start checking my number, which was all right with me, a man's voice answered. He spoke in a thick dialect. I mention this fact for its own sake and because John Roy Carlson, the sneak who writes boastful books about his success in crawling into political groups which are about as difficult to enter as the subway, often notes that dangerous and sinister "Fascist" enemies of "democracy" speak in "heavy guttural accents."

* * *

The man with the thick dialect told me that Mr. Hoffman was the president. Then, when I asked him what Mr. Hoffman's business was, he said, "what's his business? Well, I think he is a lawyer. A former judge. I think so, in New York."

Then he said, "the answers that I give you are not the right ones."

I asked him why he was giving false answers if the league were an honest organization with nothing to hide. He said that if I really were Westbrook Pegler I ought to know all about Mr. Hoffman and his business. I told him my way of getting reliable information was to approach the persons concerned openly and honestly. I never rifle their desks, spy on their telephone calls and private correspondence or plant treacherous agents in secretarial positions.

When I asked the man with the Bessarabian, or possibly Baltic, accent about Mr. Lipschutz he said Lipschutz was the treasurer. This is true notwithstanding my informant's warning that he was giving me false answers.

But when I asked him if Lipschutz were a citizen of the United States he said "I couldn't tell you," which I believe really was a false answer. I believe my informant, or misinformant, knew that Lipschutz had applied for citizenship, but, for some reason satisfactory to the government, has not been allowed to become a citizen.

After I had asked the man with the accent whether Lipschutz were a citizen and he had answered "I couldn't tell you," he asked me, "are you?"

"Yes," I said. "A native. Are you a citizen?"

"I am an African," he said. "An Abyssinian."

And when I asked his name he answered in gibberish, which may have been his name, at that.

First Friendly House Fund Drive Report Due Tomorrow

The opening of the $60,000 campaign for a new Friendly House today marks the first major settlement expansion in Mansfield within the past 52 years.

Campaign chairmen said they expected to release the first report tomorrow and to give daily reports until the closing of the drive Jan. 15. The campaign quota represents the agency's share of the cost of the $235,000 building to be erected on North Mulberry street, between Aten way and Vale avenue.

Seventy per cent of the building cost will be met by Mansfield manufacturers through the Richland Foundation.

In addition to the opening of campaign headquarters in the R. E. Moorhead showrooms on Park avenue west, solicitation began throughout the city in industry and retail stores. Donors not contacted through their businesses will be asked to mail or deliver their contributions to the Moorhead headquarters.

The new settlement house will be built on three lots donated by Carl Sternbaum, 165 Vale avenue, as a memorial to his son, Lt. Jacob Sternbaum, killed in World War II.

In 1894 the settlement movement sprang up as the "Peoples' Mission." As years passed it developed that the facilities of the mission could not accommodate the increasing needs of the neighborhod. It was decided to close the mission and reorganize and expand its activities to include social, recreation and welfare work.

Outgrowth of this was the organization of the Friendly House association in 1912. Again the work continued to increase to a point where it was necessary to secure larger quarters. In 1913 the present location on North Main street was purchased, and in 1916 the addition of a gymnasium, kindergarten room and club rooms, made.

Until 1920 the entire project was financed by interested individuals and groups. In that year the Mansfield Community Fund was organized and Friendly House accepted as an agency of the fund.

The only improvement in the facilities since 1916 has been the use of a small frame house, to the rear of the present building, acquired from the conservancy district in 1937.

BACK TO NORMAL

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Steel production in the tri-state district composed of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio neared pre-coal strike levels today after Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., reported that all except 1,300 of its 30,000 workers were back at work by Sunday.

COMMISSIONERS APPROVE PLAN FOR ROUTE 13

Right-of-Way Would Be East of City Airport.

Richland county commissioners today had adopted a resolution to establish a new State Route 13 right-of-way around the east side of municipal airport.

County Engineer Walter E. Rusk previously had surveyed routes around both the east and west side of the airport, which he reported on at a recent meeting attended by State Highway Director Perry T. Ford and other interested persons.

The eastern route was favored by most persons attending the meeting even though Rusk pointed out that the western route afforded greater economies in construction.

Proposed location of the new route will begin at a point on North Main street road approximately one and one-half miles south of the airport, curve northeast to airport land along the Erie railroad, parallel the railroad and curve back northwest to join the present route 13-A at a point approximately one-half mile north of the airport, Rusk said.

Land Ownership.

The resolution would establish the new routes across land owned by the Ohio State reformatory, Fred Bruback, R. Estep, city land along the east side of the airport and across land belonging to R. and M. Gimble, Richland Shale Brick company, A. and M. Kruger, M. Hoff and R. H. Ferguson.

The viewing date was set for Dec. 30 at 10 a. m. and final hearing will be held at 10 a. m. Jan. 6, in the commissioners' office.

City Welfare, Civic and Patriotic Groups To Play Santa Claus For Underprivileged

At least seven Mansfield social welfare, civic and patriotic organizations will don Santa's red suit for the city's underpriviledged children this week and next.

Christmas entertainments and distribution of gifts for Friendly House, Children's Home and crippled children of the Sunshine school will be held by the American Legion, 40 et 8 club, Moose Lodge, Rotary club, Beta club of the YWCA and the Hermit club. A review by the students of Ethyl Battin's dance studio also will be featured.

At noon tomorrow, Santa will make an early stop at the Rotary luncheon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Approximately 18 pupils from the Sunshine school will be guests of the club for a three-course turkey dinner and gifts. Chairman of the party is W. C. Mead. The children are pupils of Miss Gladys Fox.

As a result of two checks, from each the American Legion and the 40 et 8 club, the children at the Children's Home will receive at least one of the items on their letters to Santa this Christmas. James Brownscombe, chairman of the holiday gift to the Home, said that each child was asked to write down five requests for Christmas. From these lists, Mrs. J. L. Houston, matron of the Home, will do the shopping.

The day before Christmas, the home will receive a 20-pound bag of apples, oranges, peanuts, popcorn balls and candy from the 40 et 8 club.

On Thursday of this week, Mansfield's Moose Lodge will have all 57 children of the Home as its guests for an evening entertainment at the Lodge hall. According to the chairman, Raymond Shively, the party will feature Santa Claus and Santa jr., "the largest tree in the city," and gifts for each of the children.

Mrs. Houston said that 10 of the older girls at the Home were guests of the First Presbyterian church at an entertainment Dec. 9 at the church.

Christmas entertainments at the Friendly House will begin Friday morning and conclude Dec. 23, Russell Gimbel, director of the settlement house, said today.

At 10:15 a. m. Friday the annual kindergarten party and program will be given for parents and friends. Mrs. Gimbel, in charge of this group, said that the four and five-year olds of the kindergarten will present the program which will conclude with a gift from Santa and a Christmas treat.

From 7 to 9 p. m. Friday, 14 of the smaller children of Friendly House will be guests of the Beta Gamma club of the YWCA for a party at the "Y." Mrs. Grace Bennett will serve as party chairman.

All members of the Friendly House will enjoy the annual Christmas party Monday at 7:30 p. m. Sponsored by the Hermit club and the 40 et 8 club of the American Legion, the event will feature a visit from Santa and gifts and a dance review by the Ethyl Battin studio pupils.

Gimbel said that gifts for the Friendly House children are being donated by various organizations and clubs and many of the families will be remembered with Christmas baskets from the clubs. Friendly House will remain open through the two-week school holiday, closing only on Christmas and New Year's Days.

Needs $1,500 To Meet Goal

The emergency relief work of the Volunteers of America will be short-changed unless Mansfielders dig down for the $1,500 needed to meet a $4,000 goal by Dec. 23, Adj. R. L. Gutterman said today.

Making a final appeal for the funds, Adj. Gutterman said the annual Christmas work carried on by the agency would suffer unless more money is turned in. The Volunteers of America drive was begun Nov. 1 after it was approved by the Public Appeals Review Board.

The funds from the drive, Gutterman continued, will be used in rehabilitating families burned out or destitute, for groceries, emergency housing and general relief work among the city's residents.

Up and Down The Street

PLEA FOR HELP—

A letter to a Mansfield minister from Mrs. Elizabeth Schneider in Germany, brings a plea for information as to the whereabouts of a Mrs. Michael Schmitz, who came to Mansfield in 1914 and whose husband was a shoemaker. The Schmitzes were uncle and aunt of Mrs. Schneider, a German widow whose only son has never returned home from the war and whose brother is still in the Russian occupation zone.

Mrs. Schneider says in her letter that she was a dressmaker but cannot work at her profession because all her machines were destroyed. Hoping that she may some day get all her family together again, she asks that either her aunt or her two children, John and Thresa, get in touch with her. Anyone who has information about any of these three may call Mrs. Ray Coul, 112 West Fifth street. Mrs. Coul was given the letter by her pastor, Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger.

Wreck Victims Still Critical

Four soldiers, injured when the Pennsylvania's "Golden Triangle" crashed into the wreckage of two freight trains east of Lucas last Friday, remained in critical condition at Mansfield General hospital today. Nineteen persons, 15 of them soldiers, were killed in the wreck.

The four, still confined to the hospital, are Donald Adams of Denver, Ill., Rex Curry of Assumption, Ill., Ivan Umphress, of Weona, Ill., and Siegfried Eberhardt of Madison, Wis.

Eighteen of the less-seriously injured military personnel were removed to Fort Hayes Saturday.

Meanwhile, Pennsylvania railroad officials said an inquiry into the crash is planned. No date, however, has been set for formal hearing.

CPA APPROVES TWO PROJECTS

The Civilian Production administration has approved two building projects in Mansfield at a total estimated cost of $12,000, the CPA district office in Cleveland announced today.

The CPA also has issued permits for non-housing construction in Loudonville and Bucyrus.

The Pilgrim Holiness church in East Mansfield was authorized to construct a basement church at a cost of $6,000. The permit was issued on the grounds of "exceedingly severe" community hardship.

The Saltzgaber Drilling company received a $6,000 permit for construction of a storage building. It was issued on the grounds that it was of no impact on veterans' housing.

Area permits included a $15,200 grocery store in Bucyrus, to be constructed by Howard Schieber, and $7,000 alterations to the American Legion home in Loudonville.

BOARD TO HEAR SUGGESTIONS WEDNESDAY

Overcrowded Conditions Long Have Handicapped Institution.

Fire Chief L. J. Steele said today he would apear at the regular meeting of the board of the Mansfield General hospital Wednesday night to discuss recommendations for changes in the physical setup.

The recommendations were prepared as the result of the chief's recent inspection of the institution.

Steele said that one of the recommendations, calling for a rearrangement of fire extinguishers kept in the institution, already had been carried out by hospital officials.

* * *

Withholds Details.

The fire chief said he preferred not to discuss publicly the nature of his recommendations until they are placed before the members of the board.

It long has been known, however that overcrowded conditions at the institution have caused concern to hospital officials.

For years, the hospital has been forced to set up beds for patients in corridors. The beds are placed in a manner resembling a hospital ward, with screens being set up to guard the patients from public views.

* * *

200 Bed Capacity.

General hospital's bed capacity, including infant's cribs and isolation wards, is between 200 and 210 patients.

So far this year, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, superintendent, said, the hospital has accommodated 7,362 bed patients. He said the daily average of patients during October was 192. The total patient days was 6,175.

"There just is no place to put patients except by use of the corridors," Dr. Fonkalsrud said.

Plans for the early building of an addition to the X-ray department and enlargement of the maternity ward have been disclosed by the hospital board.

Near Capacity Audience Hears Annual Christmas Program

Miss Mabel Zehner, Mansfield odganist, and nearly 200 Senior high singers presented their annual Christmas musical yesterday afternoon before a near capacity audience in the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Zehner, organist at the Presbyterian church, played eight numbers with a holiday flavor. She accompanied the senior choir in two numbers from Handel's "The Messiah," including "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," and "Hallelujah Chorus."

The sophomore and senior choirs, singing from opposite balconies in the church, were under the direction of A LaMoine Derr.

The sophomore choir sang "Christmas is Coming," "Fanfare for Christmas," and "The Cradle Hymn."

Besides the two numbers from "The Messiah," the senior choir sang "From Heaven Above."

Miss Zehner's numbers included the stately "March of the Magi," a pastorale on the familiar "Silent Night, Holy Night," and the cheerful "Dance of the Candy Fairy" from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

GUARDS LOSE VALUE

PRACTICALLY every table of card valuation treats a king or queen as a bare "plus value" when it is not guarded by one small card in the case of the higher honor or two in the case of the lower. That is more or less sound conservatism before the bidding begins, but it can be almost thrown into the scrap heap if your partner makes any call which indicates a likelihood of high card strength in his hand If he has a higher honor in the suit of your own, the value of the unguarded honor is promoted greatly, and often it is so when he has a smaller honor

North was undoubtedly criticisable for opening the bidding when so short of the standard minimums of high card strength especially in view of the vulnerability But he made a much worse mistake later, through failing to realize the promotional value of high cards opposite high cards That value exists not only for the purpose of helping your own side make a contract, but also with your cards played on defense.

The auction should have ended with South's double of 4-Hearts North had already given his partner a bit of warning about the weakness of his hand by passing the 4-Clubs bid on the preceding round despite the fact that South had shown a great deal of "stuff" by making that call as a "free bid" over East's 3-Hearts But the mild panic which assailed North then because of his original sin became a mental rout after South doubled the hostile heart game contract.

North should have realized then that his singleton kings had taken on real value, and that less danger existed in passing than in reaching to 4-Spades when his partner's calls had denied hope of a game in the major The 4-Hearts doubled could not fail to be set a trick, with two in clubs plus a ruff of spades and a trump trick, whereas the 4-Spades or the eventual 5-Clubs could both be lambasted, each for at least two tricks.

PILES ARE NEVER MILD

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids as a "mild" disorder

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves, instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling and general nervous irritability

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

SPORTS ROUND UP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football league claims that most of the money lost in pro football is lost after Nov. 15—and we can see where there wouldn't have been so much dough made on yesterday's playoff if most of the advance sale hadn't taken place early in the week when the weather was warm . . . Carl Rebele and Harry Robb, the spare officials who merely 'observed' the Bear-Giants tussle, were paid more for that job than the top college officials get for working a game, and the officials who worked got exactly twice as much.

* * *

HIS BITE WAS WORSE

Bell also is authority for this yarn about big Joe Stydahar of the Bears . . . Seems Joe lost most of his teeth playing football and, taking no chances, he leaves his crockery choppers in the locker room, displaying only one middle tooth and one on each side as he comes down the field under a punt, grinning at the thought of the destruction his impact with the receiver will cause . . . It's a fearsome sight . . . After one such experience Davey O'Brien, who weighed only 144 pounds when he played for Bell on the Philly Eagles, told his boss: "I don't mind getting hit by him, but I hate to look at the soandso."

MONDAY MATINEE

Hard to figure cycle: George Trautman, who resigned the American association presidency to become general manager of the Tigers, quit Detroit to be headman of Minor league baseball. Billy Evans, who refused to be considered as Minor league boss, resigned as president of the Southern association to take the job Trautman left at Detroit . . . Word from the south says that sometime in January Georgia's Charley Trippi will accept a sizable chunk of cash to sign a pro baseball contract. The Braves had better get his name on the line before the bonus restrictions go in—they say Charley can't hit to left.

Fight For Boxing Crown In Garden

NEW YORK—(INS)—The welterweight crown, boxing's lone unowned diadem since it was removed from the brow of Marty Servo, will be annexed by the winner of Friday night's 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden between Tommy Bell, of Youngstown, O., and Ray Robinson, of New York, the "uncrowned king" of the division.

No welterweight ever has beaten Sugar Ray, or held him even. He beat Bell in Cleveland a year and a half ago and is a solid favorite to repeat.

BEARS DEFEAT GIANTS FOR TITLE

LAST QUARTER DRIVE SPELLS 24-14 VICTORY

NEW YORK — (UP) — Neither the Chicago Bears or the New York Giants were satisfied today with the 24 to 14 Bear victory yesterday which gave the "Monsters of the Midway" their fifth National football league championship.

As the game was played, the Bears won decisively, showing more power and precision in every department, and in normal conditions it would have been a gratifying revenge for the 14 to 0 beating the Giants gave the Bears in regular-season play.

But it wasn't played under normal conditions; the shadow of an attempted "fix" of the game by gamblers hung over the packed Polo Grounds, and the Giants were without the services of Merl Hapes, hard-running back who was declared ineligible because of his part in the would-be coup. Hapes was innocent of bribe-taking, but NFL Commissioner Bert Bell suspended him because he had been approached directly by Alvin Paris, the gambler who admitted he tried to "fix" the game.

Frank Filchock, the Giants' ace passer, also was directly approached, according to police who took Paris' confession, but he was allowed to play. He did everything a football player can do toward winning a game, but it wasn't enough.

The Giants were sullen and depressed before the game, and then their feelings seemed to turn to nervousness as they trotted onto the field before 58,326 fans.

They fumbled several times in the early part of the game before regaining their professional aplomb, and one of those fumbles cost them a touchdown. George Franck bobbled on his own 34-yard-line, and two plays later Sid Luckman passed 21 yards to Hugh Gallarneau for a touchdown. Less than five minutes of play had elapsed.

A few minutes later Filchock, who took a hard battering all day as he tried to pass, got off a wobbly aerial that the Bears' Dante Magnani intercepted on his own 39 and returned for an easy touchdown. That made it 14 to 0 as Frank Maznicki converted and a rout appeared imminent.

But Filchock pulled his team together, and passed a Giant touchdown to Frank Liebel just before the first quarter ended.

The second quarter was scoreless, and early in the third quarter New York tied the score as the game Filchock squirmed away from tacklers on the Bear five-yard-line, backed up to the 10, began to run, then stopped and passed for a touchdown to Steve Filipowicz.

That was the last New York threat. Superior Bear power and weight began to tell, and the serious losses of New York manpower began to hurt.

The weary Giants were easy prey for a Bear slicker early in the last quarter. Luckman faded a few yards as if to pass, then whipped right through the middle of the line for a 19-yard scoring run. The touchdown climaxed a 69-yard drive.

Maznicki kicked a 26-yard field goal with six minutes to play, and Luckman ended the Giants' final drive when he intercepted a Filchock pass, one of six Giants passed grabbed by Bears.

Luckman was the star of the game, figuring in two touchdowns and directing his team perfectly. He set two playoff records—seven touchdown passes in total playoff games, and a total of 720 yards gained by passes in playoff games. He gained 144 yards yesterday. Filchock completed nine of 26 passes for 128 yards; Luckman completed nine of 22 passes.

Cage Coaches Turn Fearful Eyes On Midwest Colleges

The nation's foremost college basketball coaches turned fearful eyes upon the midwest Monday, for there, in the "cradle of basketball," pranced six rambunctious teams which ranked as early-season masters of all they surveyed.

'Tis difficult indeed to rate one team above another at this infant stage of the 1946-47 hoop parade. But any such rating would have to include Illinois, Bowling Green, Kentucky, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Western Michigan.

Consider happenings of Saturday night:

Illinois — The Whiz Kids scampered to their third straight, walloping Pitt, 58 to 31.

Bowling Green — won not one game, but two! The Ohioans engaged in a doubleheader: beat Wilmington, 75 to 41; then beat Western Kentucky, 39 to 37.

Kentucky — Kept right on going. The Southeastern conference and National Invitational champs smothered Texas A. & M., 83 to 18.

Minnesota — Conquerors of De Paul, the Gophers humbled North Dakota, 75 to 34.

Wisconsin — Preserved an undefeated skein and ended Notre Dame's unbeaten record by topping the Irish, 53 to 49, in a thrilling overtime battle.

Western Michigan — Conquerors of St. John's, the Broncos ended Michigan's winning streak with a roaring 65 to 61 triumph.

Two of the golden half dozen will get further argument tonight. Illinois stops off on its journey to the coast to play Missouri in Kansas City and Minnesota plays host to a traveling St. Louis University quintet.

Other big battles tonight include Nevada vs Duquesne, South Dakota vs Iowa, Pittsburgh vs Northwestern, Loyola of Chicago vs Toledo and Rice vs Marquette.

Loyola and Rice will be out to make amends. Along with Notre Dame and Michigan, these two schools were felled from the unbeaten ranks in notable returns Saturday night. Loyola's lumps came at the hands of St. John's in New York's Madison Square Garden, 58 to 43. Rice took it on the chin at Chicago Stadium, where De Paul's Cagers won a 48 to 44 verdict.

Pennsylvania topped the Ivy league doings by knocking off Yale, 48 to 45. The Far West's program was headed by Wyoming's Cowboys, who stopped Idaho, 36 to 31, while in the Midwest an inspired Louisville University quintet was upsetting Indiana 53 to 46.

Shelby Seeks Third Victory

SHELBY—The Shelby Whippets will be seeking their third win out of five games Tuesday night when they entertain Norwalk high school here in a cage game that will not count toward the official Northern Ohio league standings. The two schools meet later for the league tilt at Norwalk.

Coach Charles Williams' quintet is tied with Upper Sandusky for the lead in the league cage race. The two teams will meet in one or three league games scheduled for Friday night. Shelby travels to Upper Sandusky.

The Rams defeated Bellevue, 46 to 34, for one of the biggest upsets this season. The Bellevue five had not been defeated in four games up to its opening league game with Upper Sandusky.

The Maple City five from Norwalk will be seeking its fourth straight victory after defeating Willard, Ashland and Sandusky. Coach Grant Walls' has a veteran team back from last year's squad which won the No league title.

The Whippets have defeated Willard and Bucyrus, while losing to Mansfield Madison and Fostoria.

Former Boxing Champ Killed

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—(INS)—The body of former world lightweight champion Frank Erne lay unclaimed today in a San Bernardino mortuary.

Erne was run down by an automobile in San Bernardino Friday night while crossing the street to the county hospital, where he was under treatment.

Erne won the title from Kid Lavigne in .903 and dropped it to Terry McGovern in 1906. During his championship reign he won a decision from Joe Gans.

VERNON, PESKY LEAD AMERICAN LEAGUE IN HITS

NEW YORK — (INS) — A study of the official American league batting averages for 1946 disclosed today that a couple of modern Willie Keelers are roaming the premises of the junior circuit.

They are James B. (Mickey) Vernon of the Washington Senators and Johny Pesky of the Boston Red Sox, who finished first and third, respectively, in the averages with Ted Williams of the Bosox sandwiched in between them.

Vernon and Pesky, like Keeler, were right up there despite their inability to hit triples and homers. Only 16 of Vernon's 207 hits were good for more than two bases, although Mickey did lead the circuit in loubles with 51.

Pesky was a real throwback to Keeler because no less than 202 of his 208 hits were good for only one base, just like the old time Yankee who specialized in "hitting them where they ain't."

Vernon's mark was .353, eleven points better than the fabulous Williams. Pesky's average was .335. This trio paced a group of returning GI's who powdered the pill with such gusto that the league sprouted nine regulars who hit .300 or better, as against only three in the final wartime campaign.

The pennant-winning Red Sox, paced by Williams, Pesky and Dom DiMaggio, won team hitting honors with a collective mark of .271, eleven points better than Washington.

Williams scored the most runs, 142, making the fourth consecutive year he led in this department, a new Major league record.

Hank Greenberg, another war vet, regained his home run crown with a total of 44 circuit clouts.

Smokehouse Five Meet AVC In CITY A League

Smokehouse cagers will be after their third win in the City A league at the Senior high gymnasium tonight.

The Cuemen meet the AVC veterans in the night-cap. Smokehouse is tied with Richland Beverage and Komito's Clothiers for the top rung of the first division. The World War II quintet has yet to win a game.

Mansfield Tire and Rubber squad collides with McCarrick's Gulf team in the second canto. The two basketball quintets are tied with the Urschel Insurancemen and Yuncker's for first place in the No. 2 division. The three teams have split a pair of games.

In the opening tilt on tonight's schedule at 7, Yuncker's Sports will be seeking its second straight victory against the Ohio Sports Center. The Center has dropped two games in league play.

Wednesday night the Richland Beverage quint meets the Ohio Sports Center, which plays a set of games this week, in the last cage game.

In the other two games, Komito's Clothiers collide with the Legion Post 72 courtmen and the Insurancemen run up against the Barnes Manufacturing cagers.

Bedtime Stories

THE LISTENERS

The Green Forest is filled with listening ears. Little happens there that is not soon known by many. Some of the furred and feathered folk living there depend more on their ears than their eyes, for often they can hear what they cannot see. When their eyes are closed in sleep their ears are wide open on guard.

But good ears are of little use without knowledge and understanding of what is heard. Those live longest who learn to know the meaning of each sound. They are good listeners and their ears gather in all the news of the Green Forest. Often their ears hear first what their eyes see later.

"Listen!" exclaimed Mrs. Grouse.

It was very still there in the Green Forest just after break of day. There were no leaves to rustle even had there been any wind, for the ground was covered deep with snow. It bent down the boughs of the evergreen trees. Everywhere it shimmered and glittered for a hard crust of ice had been formed in the night by Jack Frost. Thunderer the Grouse listened. For a moment the stillness was unbroken. Then he heard a faint tap, tap, tap, tap. He knew instantly where that sound came from and what it meant.

"It is as we feared," said he.

Mrs. Grouse nodded sadly. "Yes, said she. "That is one of the poor dears trying to peck through this dreadful crust." She walked over to the spot from which that tapping came and began to peck at the crust, but it was too hard for even her stout bill.

"There is another," said Thunderer. Sure enough a faint tapping could be heard at another spot near by. Within a few minutes a faint tapping could be heard from two more spots.

Blacky the Crow, flying over, saw Thunderer and Mrs. Grouse and stopped in a tree near them. "You folks look worried," said he.

"We are," replied Mrs. Grouse.

Just then Blacky's keen ears caught the faint sound of tapping and instantly he knew what it meant. "So that is it!" said he. "One of the children is trapped under the crust."

Mrs. Grouse nodded sadly. "Four of them," said she. "We warned them not to go to bed in the snow last night but they did. Now they are prisoners. They can't get out and we can't get them out."

"Which means that unless this crust softens soon they will starve to death," said Thunderer.

"Too bad," said Blacky. "They should have heeded their parents. A lot of folks are likely to starve if this crust lasts long. I'm likely to myself." He spread his black wings and went to look for his breakfast, knowing that he would be lucky if he found any.

A little later Tommy Tit the Chickadee passed that way and paused as he heard a faint tapping. He listened for a moment. "Dee, dee, dee! Too bad!" said he.

"What is too bad?" asked Sammy Jay, who happened along just in time to hear him.

"Listen," replied Tommy Tit.

Sammy listened. "Grouse trapped in the snow!" he exclaimed. "Thunderer and Mrs. Grouse are too smart for that, so it must be some of their children. They are big enough to know better than to give Jack Frost a chance to make prisoners of them."

"But not old enough. This is their first winter and they have to learn some things by experience. We all do," said Tommy Tit.

"They are learning," replied Sammy Jay dryly.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel heard those faint sounds and stopped to listen. He, too, knew at once what had happened. He didn't say it was too bad. If those Grouse should starve to death there would be good meat down there in the snow when the crust softened. He is a meat eater when he can get it.

Jumper the Hare listened and knew what it meant. Last of all came Reddy Fox. He listened, and his was hungry listening.

The next story: "Farmer Brown's Boy Listens."

Young Ruler of Iran Hopes For Better Times In Future

By SAM SOUKI
United Press Staff Correspondent

TEHRAN —(U.P.)— The Shah of Iran foresees a period of tranquility leading to better living for his people and believes the situation in Azerbaijan Province has returned to normal.

With quiet optimism the 28-year-old ruler, Mohammed Riza Pahlevi, described in an interview his plans for raising Iran's standard of living, education and health His cheerful attitude was enhanced by news that his armies were re-establishing their control over areas recently dominated by dissident regimes.

"The new situation in the Azerbaijan question is a normal situation," he said. "I was confident at all times that the people of Azerbaijan would have the same wishes as the rest of the country."

* * *

The Shah's troops have solified their rule over Azerbaijan Province, wiping out the final shreds of "democrat" resistance. General Ali Razmara, Iranian chief of staff, announced that government forces had entered Mehabad, seat of the self-proclaimed 'Kurdish people's republic" without resistance. He said Ghazi Mohammed, the Kurd regime's leader, was prepared to "submit himself" to the central government.

In slow but accurate English, the Shah said how he hoped to give his unified people better housing, food, clothing, health and education.

"We need a long period of tranquility to get on with this. Reform will take time," he said.

The interview was held in the Shah's private palace study, a room of quiet taste reached by walking through a columned corridor of marble strewn with Persian rugs.

"We want an improved standard of living for the people," the Shah said. 'There are five principal points — housing, food, clothing, health and education. The first three will be mainly obtained by providing work for people, and minimum pay for minimum hours of work should be sufficient to procure them those things and have a little over for weekly recreation and pay for their life and work insurance. Health safeguards and education will be provided free by the government."

* * *

Of Iran's relations with Russia, Britain and the United States he said, "We, like every other country, want to enjoy good relations with those powers."

The Shah referred especially to the role of aviation in developing Iran. He is a keen flier and has visited many remote parts of the country in his American-made plane.

"In a country like Iran where distances are great, the future must bring a considerable increase in aviation to facilitate travel both within the country and between Iran and the rest of the world," he said.

"Planes also are necessary from a military viewpoint. That's part of our plan for modernizing the army and air force. We hope to acquire new equipment. Nothing has been decided on where we will acquire it, but we must get the best and the most suitable specifications."

FAMILY MESSAGE NUMBER 8

How to get the most out of Your Family's life insurance

The whole family will benefit by deciding now how its life insurance proceeds should best be distributed. Dr. S. S. Huebner, Professor of Insurance, University of Pennsylvania, suggests some of the basic things the family should consider.

1 Each family's needs are different

"Just as you can plan your day-to-day money affairs for happier living, you can also plan now for payment of the proceeds of your family's life insurance for greater happiness later on. Most life insurance policies are flexible enough to be adapted to each family's needs and wishes.

"For some families, it is better to plan for most of the proceeds to be paid out in the form of a life income for the beneficiary. For others, it may be better to arrange that they be paid monthly for a fixed number of years. Or again, the money can be left with the life insurance company at interest until needed. Or a combination of these plans can be arranged.

"Where family social security benefits are available, they should be taken into consideration in this planning."

2 Why you should keep the family life insurance plan up to date...

"Family conditions change over the years. A periodic check-up of the family life insurance may suggest different uses for the proceeds to meet special or new needs.

"For example: In planning for the proceeds to be distributed as family income, it can be arranged to have larger amounts payable while the children are still in school, and smaller amounts after they have gone to work.

"If your children already support themselves, you may wish to adjust your life insurance so that the parents can enjoy some of its value as retirement income."

3 What is the best way to get help in planning?... "That's where the advice of a good life insurance agent is important. He understands your policies in complete detail and knows how to help you judge your various needs. Because there are so many different family situations, life insurance policies provide a wide variety of methods by which payments can be made. Your agent will be able to show you how to take advantage of all the opportunities offered and to adjust your program to give your family the greatest happiness and satisfaction.

"The best way to keep your life insurance plan up to date is to review it at least every two years...or whenever your family situation changes materially. Your life insurance agent will be glad to assist you at any time."

Watch for Family Message No. 9 about two weeks from now.

HOW TO PLAN FOR FAMILY HAPPINESS

Regardless of the size of income, any family can have more happiness and fewer worries by planning the use of the family money.

First: provide in advance for payments coming due, such as rent, taxes, mortgage charges, life insurance and other insurance. The easiest way is to bank small amounts each payday that will add up to the totals when due.

Second: set aside something extra each payday in the savings account until you build up an emergency fund.

Then you know what is left to spend on everyday family needs such as food, clothing, recreation—and what you can set aside for such family plus as a new home, education, travel.

Because the life insurance companies and their agents have long helped people to plan for family security and happiness, they are conducting this program of information as a public service to the 71,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American family.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Remember that you are urged to do your Christmas shopping "early"—not "surly."

Now it's Walter Reuther who has an idea that "people are sick of strikes"—and it's nice to have the information get around.

Return of the 10-cent tip is being reported in some cities—and there's an indication that more people are beginning to realize that $10 bills do not have an expiration date.

Home-Building Restrictions Eased

WHAT is obviously an experiment in the desperate effort being made to relieve the nation's acute housing shortage appears in President Truman's announcement of removal of many federal restrictions on home building, and encouragement of private enterprise to take a larger part in the construction program.

Special emphasis is placed, as might be expected, on the urgency of need for suitable homes for veterans—with recognition that a large percentage of ex-service men prefer to rent, rather than to buy a home.

While the $10,000 ceiling on sales price of new homes is removed, discouragement of what is called "luxury-type" housing will continue through the simple expedient of requiring prospective builders to secure a government permit.

Opportunity given for persons to build a new home for their own occupancy will naturally serve to open rental units for other tenants, but it will be in volume of construction for rental purposes that the real solution lies—and the accomplishment will not be satisfactory in small communities if the "average rental" of $80 a month is to apply, as a relatively small percentage of veterans or other workers can afford to pay that much rent as a permanent obligation.

Anticipation of larger supplies of building materials in 1947 depends—as in other things—on expectation of full production, which cannot now be assured . . . nor does it seem likely that there will be a sufficiency of qualified craftsmen in the building trades to carry through the extensive building program contemplated in the newly announced program.

An interesting suggestion offered by the president is that of intended effort to enlarge the present apprentice training program to expand the supply of skilled and semi-skilled carpenters, bricklayers and other construction workers, in order to offset a "prospective serious shortage of manpower." Just how this will be accepted by organizations that have been inclined to limit apprenticeships in various trades is problematical.

Experience thus far has been that many veterans have been compelled to shoulder excessive financial burdens in contracting to buy property at a price greatly above value, in order to find a place to live, and the problems thus created are likely to extend far into the future.

Plan Highways To Serve Motor Age

THE NEED for new four and six-lane highways throughout the country has become more apparent with every month that has passed since the war's end.

The temporary patching procedure which was almost the only repair technique used during the war was ineffective and insufficient. With the increasing flood of traffic have come more accidents, caused by impatient drivers with worn-out cars trying to cope with narrow, uneven, bumpy roads.

These conditions were foreseen by congress, and in 1944 it authorized a new network of highways to connect all of the larger cities. Routes are now being decided on, and construction is under way in some sections. Others may have to wait, because of shortage of materials and labor.

Drivers who have travelled on the express highways now in use in some states are enthusiastic about the speed and safety which they make possible. The old two-lane road, reminiscent of horse-and-buggy days, is on the way out.

Some Feast While Others Starve

UNEXPECTEDLY good crops in the four leading food-producing countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—have given many Americans a false sense of optimism as to the situation this winter in war-devastated lands, says the American Friends Service committee. The report of the Copenhagen conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization of UN says that there is at the moment a shortage of 8,000,000 tons of bread grain.

Lack of inter-zonal exchange in Germany prevents transporting supplies from Russia, and the stream of Germans coming in from Eastern Europe strains food, shelter and clothing supplies to points far below subsistence levels.

The Austrian 1,200 calorie ration, hardly more than one-third that of Americans, has had to be reduced. Hungary's level has reached 780 calories. In Poland nearly half a million children are shoeless. Most hard pressed of all Europe's children, tens of thousands live on potatoes in rat-infested cellars amid the ruins of houseless Warsaw.

Asia's story is worse as typified by the report of the director-general of China relief that within recent months 20 million Chinese have died of hunger. In India the American food mission, commenting on an efficient food distribution plan for southern India, says there is only food enough to last through the first 17 days of December.

While Americans move into the Christmas time on a 3,360 calorie daily average, it is an inescapable fact that millions of their brothers are starving.

It Sometimes Happens That Way

SUCH AN occurrence as that of last week-end in Anderson, S. C., might better go unreported if it were not for the fact that thought of its frightfulness may influence some person to avoid the chief factor therein.

It is the story of a mother's heartbreak after her 17-year-old son had been shot and killed by his father.

"He was a good boy," the mother sobbed: "He didn't drink or smoke, and he was always good to me."

Her husband, she told investigators, had been drinking heavily for two weeks, and she quoted him as having threatened to kill her and their son, whom he accused of having tried to "make a damned saint" out of him.

Questioned after the crime, the man said: "I don't remember anything since yesterday morning." That is all.

Statistics reveal that today the average man lives 25 years longer than a century ago, and, as John L. Chapman explains it in Coronet, "He has to in order to get his taxes paid."

Health is prized most highly by those who are ill.

REMOVING THE THREAT TO WORLD PEACE

Pearson Says Vinson Refused To Delay Hearing of Miners' Case

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When John L. Lewis's lawyers, Welly K. Hopkins and Joe Padway, came out of the Supreme Court a week ago, newsmen reported them looking dejected and unhappy. Before they could be interviewed, Attorney General Tom Clark came to the rescue of his legal adversaries and whisked them away in his own limousine.

Speculation has been rife ever since as to what happened inside the chief justice's chambers to make the two labor lawyers look so crestfallen.

It is now possible to tell the inside story on that conference.

The meeting with Chief Justice Vinson was for the purpose of seeing whether the Supreme Court would take immediate jurisdiction of the miners-injunction dispute and to fix a time for argument. The chief justice listened carefully, said nothing, while labor lawyers Hopkins and Padway asked for a 25-day delay. They claimed they needed that time to prepare their case.

To this Attorney General Clark flatly objected. In his slow but friendly Texas drawl, he pointed out that the nation faced an emergency.

"These gentlemen are expert labor lawyers," he added, "and while they are entitled to sufficient time to prepare their case, I imagine they have carefully briefed this thing in their minds for some time."

Accordingly, he asked the chief justice to set Monday, Dec. 16, as the date for argument, thus giving the miners nine days to prepare their case.

"Would you like to know what I think?" asked square-jawed Chief Justice Vinson, who hitherto had said little.

Both sides indicated they would like to have his views.

"I had in mind," he continued, "setting argument for next Thursday."

His words fell like a bombshell on miner lawyers Hopkins and Padway. This would have given them from Dec. 7 to Dec. 12, or five days, to prepare their case—as against nine days proposed by the attorney general.

At no time did the chief justice give any inkling either to them or to anyone else as to how he felt about the merits of the case. But he did make it emphatically clear that the Supreme Court owed it to the nation to try the case in a hurry.

That ended the private conference in the chief justice's chambers, following which Hopkins and Padway rushed back to United Mine Workers headquarters. Two hours later John L. Lewis called off his strike.

Miners Want More Delay.

Shortly after the strike ended, the clerk of the Supreme Court phoned both the attorney general and the Lewis lawyers and asked them to meet with Chief Justice Vinson at 3 p. m. for a second conference. This time Vinson asked both sides for their views as to when the case should be argued—now that the strike was settled.

Padway and Hopkins proposed that the case be set on the regular court calendar and taken up as a matter of routine.

This meant argument in late February or March—with another possible coal strike set for March 31. Again Attorney General Clark objected.

"I feel very definitely that this case should be argued in a reasonable length of time," he said. "Certainly in January."

Again the chief justice listened. This time he expressed no view, and the lawyers were preparing to come back the following week and present further ideas on appropriate dates, when the court beat them to it. It announced at its next session that it would hear argument on Jan. 14.

Texas Diplomat.

Statuesque Senator Tom Connally is just as open-hearted and well-liked as the broad plains of Texas from which he hails; but as a diplomat he is causing a few headaches to Jimmy Byrnes. Even Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, who gets along well with Tom despite being on opposite sides of the political fence, has had to prod his friend from Texas.

It was during the debate over Spanish Dictator Franco that Senator Connally got things snarled up Apparently Tom fell for the charm of the British and of certain state department career men, especially Outerbridge Horsey, who handles Spanish affairs.

At one point in the United Nations debate over Franco, Connally rose and proclaimed:

"The United States will not be bound by any resolution passed by the general assembly (on Franco)."

This was equivalent to Connally's getting up on the floor of the senate and stating that he would violate a law even if passed by the senate.

The statement so shocked other delegates that Connally later offered an apology, explaining that he hadn't meant what he said.

Meanwhile, the U. S. delegation—including able Senator Austin of Vermont, Mrs. Roosevelt and Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California—were dead opposed to Connally. Senator Vandenberg even took Tom aside and told him he was making the United States look ridiculous, while Rep. Douglas phoned Acting Secretary of State Acheson in Washington who, in turn, put the screws on Franco-admirers in the state department.

By this time, however, the British and Long Tom were working beautifully together in regard to Franco.

Note 1—The state department now hopes to replace Franco with Indalecio Prieto, a member of the last Spanish Loyalist government, who favored a negotiated peace with Franco.

Note 2 — Outerbridge Horsey, the state department official who plays so close to the British in defending Franco, was educated first at the Downside School, England, later at Trinity college, Cambridge.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Dec. 16, 1926.

Seventeen Mansfield families changed places of residence, despite cold wave.

Article predicted that television was "near at hand." (That was 20 years ago.)

Chamber of Commerce monthly publication, "Mansfield Today," was being mailed to members.

Members of Garcia club decided to make and fill candy bags for distribution by the Family Welfare agency.

Naturalization class was opened with Mrs. Mary Beal as instructor.

Eighty members attended meeting of Foremen's club of steel plant, held in company's office building.

John W. Bricker, member of the state utilities commission, was speaker at Kiwanis club meeting held at Masonic temple with E. W. Dann as program chairman.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On December 16, 1912, G. W. Donaghey, then governor of the state of Arkansas, pardoned 360 convicts as a protest against the state convict-leasing system.

Dave Boone Says:

I DON'T know how peace by the skyscraper method will work out. It seems to me that the mood of the wise men and the shepherds tending their flocks by night is needed and that it'll never be found in an atmosphere of traffic tie-ups and arguments over bent fenders.

* * *

You couldn't get a shepherd into a six-block super-city in the heart of a great metropolis with a shotgun, if you ask me.

* * *

UN needs a home and the Rockefellers are making a big-hearted gesture in a great cause. But I think what the greatest organization for world peace in history needs are green pastures, still waters and a mood not jarred by life in a skyscraper zone.

* * *

I hate to think of peace linked up with statistics like "six blocks of fireproof buildings," "5,000 tons of high-grade steel," "the fastest elevators in the world" and "six rathskellers with fluorescent lighting." I like to think of it as tied up with a star and trees and a manger.

Timely Editorial

On Treating Colds.

The Journal of the American Medical association's dictum that many cold remedies are "obsolete" and "illogical" will come as no surprise to those of us who had supposed all along that the only sovereign remedy for a cold is a couple of weeks. In fact, some cold concoctions no longer claim to cure a cold—they only contend they will cure "the miseries of a cold." I. e., you will still have the cold, but you won't feel so badly about it.

The Journal says "excellent physical condition, peace of mind, adequate diet and pleasant weather" will help, but won't necessarily effect a cure. And even if they would, who could do it? A regimen like that would involve keeping so constantly on the move and straining so many fibers to ignore unpleasant facts that it seem anyone would be reduced to a perfectly miserable physical condition, jumpy, irritable, and a prey to the least formidable cold germ.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

View Political 'Payoffs' As Part of 'The Game.'

WASHINGTON—Normally speaking, congressional hearings are the most boresome sort of proceedings in the world.

When they suddenly become exciting, John Q. Citizen had better take a second look—and smell — because far too often the melodrama is little more than a red herring.

Last Friday, the Bilbo hearings became dramatically exciting. No one was more exposed to that excitement than this correspondent who was probably the closest person to the brawl which broke up the senate inquiry into Theodore G. Bilbo's dealings with war contractors.

Ex-Congressman Ross Collins and witness Robert Gandy, both fellow Mississippians of Bilbo, were sprawling around under my feet. The whole thing made me sick at my stomach—including the fact that the all-too-smooth committee leadership seized on the opportunity to recess the hearing.

Both men should have been placed back on their chairs by the capitol cops (who were so slow intervening that murder could have been committed, had murder been on either man's mind) and the hearing should have been resumed.

It was just getting interesting—at least to ordinary citizens, who believe that seats in the highest legislative body in the land shouldn't be peddled back and forth among penny-ante politicians.

But it was stopped promptly at that point. Now let us study why. . . .

As was said previously, congressional hearings usually are dull and boresome. One editor told me, "in two years, you have some 3,000 such sessions — and this sort of thing happens maybe once in two years."

But this was different. This was shot full of drama from the start. Wizened-faced, like a harried buzzard, Senator Bilbo peered first with animation and then with animosity at each succeeding witness.

But he was not alone. Gradually, testimony entered the hearings in a manner which could not be confined to Bilbo. First it spread to the rest of Mississippi politics — which, quite frankly, made the belligerent gesture of Ross Collins seem ridiculous—and then it began to fan out over other states.

Some contractors who were called came from outside states. They had made their peace with their local political powers before approaching the Mississippi kingpins. Many of them, not too thoughtful people, were frankly puzzled about the whole proceedings.

In short, they had thought the political payoff was an accepted thing. And, being busy men, bent on making money, they had not bothered to buck or bypass it.

Thus, all of them sometimes glared at witnesses as though they were traitors—just as Bilbo did. And other members of congress, both on and off the committee, sometimes obviously winced at words used by the not-too-smoothly-coached witnesses.

Thus the unusual outburst came, with Collins clouting a witness from the stand and the committee quickly recessing its hearing. And what did the whole proceedings prove?

Well, try these on for size:

1—Whatever his motives, Collins managed, deftly and dramatically, to keep his name from being definitely connected with political payoffs, at least temporarily.

2—The war contract "gratuity" charges against Bilbo, even if proved only in part, were such that he should never be seated in the U. S. Senate as long as there is a citizen who remembers the men who died in the war just ended.

3—Such charges cannot be confined to Bilbo, nor to the state of Mississippi, even with its swap-or-sell political allegiance practices.

4—Finally, if the state committee clears Bilbo, after what has been testified—and unrefuted—countless citizens will be convinced that it did so only because its members feared what an opposite precedent might do to their own political careers.

In short, no matter what sworn enemies participate in it, or what politicians preview it, cheap drama doesn't impress me any more—even when its pseudo-victims fall at my feet.

To Go the Whole Hog.

This metaphor is not, as was once thought, an Americanism, but hails from old Ireland.

In the Emerald Isle, "hog" was slang for a shilling. And anybody who spent a whole shilling at once is said to have been considered extravagant and spoken of as having gone the whole hog.

Socialistic Trend In Wage Demands.

WASHINGTON—Business and industry as a whole are smack up against what General Motors, when it faced the same issue a year ago, called "A revolutionary theory for handling wage negotiations."

So is the nation.

It cannot be overemphasized, and for that reason something more will be said here of the new approach which the CIO now is taking, as a general policy, in looking forward to negotiation for wage increases.

The aim is to bring purchasing power of workers up to the increase of prices in recent months caused by abolition of OPA and price controls.

The basic contention is that industry can increase wages without increasing prices. Whether that is fallacious or not, is not the question here. It is the ground now taken. Most important is that it opens up into the "revolutionary theory" of which General Motors complained. That was the argument that labor, in its negotiations, is entitled to have the facts of a business, its profits, its dividends, its price schedules and how they are formulated, and like information, before there can be a determination of wages.

As stated here in a dispatch from Detroit over a year ago, it in effect would give labor a sort of partnership in business and industry. President Truman set the pattern for this approach when in a directive to the arbitration board he appointed in the General Motors strike, he said: "It is essential to a fulfillment of its duty that the board have the authority, whenever it deems it necessary, to examine the books of the employer."

"Ability to pay," he added, "is always one of the facts relevant to the issue of an increase in wages."

Later the president proposed that congress authorize subpoena of books and records for arbitration boards in the labor bill that died in the last congress. That provision was killed in the house labor committee before the bill even got started.

General Motors refused to participate with the fact-finding board, saying in a brochure: "Such action by the board would result in political determination of wage levels—a vital business question that is interrelated with costs, prices, profits, schedules and investments."

That, General Motors said, would produce a "political determination of wages" and eventually might lead into "some sort of socialistic, regimented economy" installed without the approval of congress.

There is no denying it is an approach to socialism. It is interesting in that connection that Walter Reuther, who tried it unsuccessfully with General Motors, is regarded in the old line socialistic tradition.

It is interesting, too, historically, that this approach has been used for years by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America which has Socialistic influences in its leadership and ranks. So it is nothing new, except on the broad scale that it is now developing.

But the issue is here, and with large labor and consumer support, and what is important for business and industry now to consider is that it has permeated down to rank-and-file workers on a scale that might not be imagined unless we had good evidence.

That evidence is found in polls among workers by Factory, a McGraw Hill publication certainly not radical. It shows, among other interesting and often inconsistent opinions of workers, that three out of four think his company could pay an increase in wages without increasing prices. Also that 65 per cent think industry—here treated as an entity—could give workers a wage increase now without raising prices.

Food Distribution Presents Difficulties.

WASHINGTON — Potatoes are a glut on today's market. The price of cotton has dropped sharply. Commodity futures are down. There are storm warnings that a break in the wartime prosperity of agriculture is near.

It is a warning that we are going back to the old order of an overflowing abundance in one country and scarcity in the country next door.

The old order meant business as usual and government as usual while farmers' incomes dwindled and people went hungry.

That is the folly which a group of men sitting around a conference table in New York are trying to cure. They are delegates to a 16-nation preparatory food commission. They hope to agree on an international organization which would pool surpluses and channel them where the need was greatest.

All this began with the vision of Sir John Boyd Orr, chairman of UN's food and agriculture organization. At the FAO conference in Copenhagen, Sir John proposed a world food board. That food board would have the power and the funds to buy up surpluses in a glutted market and sell them in needy areas.

In effect, it was the dream of Joseph in the Bible applied not to Egypt alone but to the world.

The question whether such an advanced plan would be acceptable to the big producing nations came up at once. There were grave doubts on this score. A compromise was presented by John Strachey, Britain's food minister.

On the basis of this compromise, the 16 delegates to the conference in New York hope to agree. Under the British proposal, food surpluses would be accumulated by an international authority, but "no buffer stock could be set up without the consent of the countries concerned." Such an authority would have the right to sell surpluses under certain restrictions.

While this plan's method would be complicated, the essence of it is simple. It would be aimed at preventing poverty and hunger in the midst of plenty.

Strachey, in his speech at Copenhagen, quoted the couplet:

"Here lies the body of Farmer Pete,
Who starved from growing too much wheat."

Instead of a world food board, under the British proposal, the scheme would be included in the international trade organization which the United States is sponsoring. This has caused considerable embarrassment among our own policy-makers.

Will Clayton, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, opposed Sir John's world food board. He argued that congress would never accept it, particularly since it would mean the appropriation of large sums of money. What is more, it would put too much power over our commodity markets into an international organization.

Nor is Clayton too happy over the British compromise, according to reports. It goes against the thinking of a man who has spent most of his life watching the fluctuations of the world's commodity markets in accord with what, to men like Clayton, appear to be the immutable laws of supply and demand.

Acceptance of some such plan as the British propose might be much wider in this country than one would at first think.

Our own farmers are acutely conscious of the ruin that came with the "overproduction" and the disastrous prices of the late '20s and the early '30s.

While organized crop restriction helped to keep prices up, it can never be more than a temporary solution.

Farmer's Diary: "The Hunted Fox."

I WALKED north through the brush, along a beaten trail, when it was snowing. Thick flakes pelted down upon the crisp forest leaves and blurred my view of something rusty-brown that moved across the path just ahead.

I hurried to get a view, but the animal moved, too. It was a red fox that tried with all his might to escape me . . . but only the head and forelegs appeared alive. The rest of the animal—hind quarters and large round furry brush—dragged painfully on the snow. With great effort he widened the distance between us, whining at every sudden motion.

Foxes I have always known to be strangely alert, with head and body at attention. The rusty coat, sleek and full of luster; the long graceful plume of tail, a brush of fluff. Here, without exception, was the most disheveled, spiritless fox I had ever seen. For once, I was deeply sorry that I had no gun. A bullet would have been merciful.

I noticed where drops of moisture soiled the upper flank, and streaks of red flowed through. I saw that my presence aggravated him. Even his keen discernment had never known human pity. I walked on.

Returning that way, an hour later, I followed the trail of rusty fur and streaks of blood into a thicket of tall blackberry canes and elder stalks, where a big opening to a burrow could be seen. He had gone in. Perhaps a year or two ago it was his home. Now he seeks healing and shelter there.

I wondered how far he had dragged himself. I wondered if he would die from the wound or from starvation.

"A hunter told me that he shot a fox," exclaimed the second boy when I related the incident. "He said it was a dandy, and he took a long shot and it dropped over, so he knew 'twas hit, but when he got there, it was gone. The pelt is worth money. So are the paws—for a bounty" . . . then seeing the thought of the suffering animal in my face, he added, "but I'll bet he'll rest up and get well, and outfox the hunters as long as he lives."

REUTHER FORESEES 'DRIFT TO DISASTER'

NEW YORK — (AP) — Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said Saturday "we cannot escape the drift toward disaster if we go into another wave of strikes."

Reuther, who announced Thursday that the UAW would seek a 23½ cents an hour wage increase for its 900,000 members, said the union would use every possible means to settle basic problems between it and employers before resorting to strikes.

The UAW president, speaking at a meeting sponsored by the magazine "Labor and Nation," said "a super state will rise to take care of the problem for us unless labor and management solve their problems on a voluntary basis."

Ponce de Leon conquered Puerto Rico for Spain in 1590, established the first settlement and became the island's first governor-general.

Recluse Leaves $50,000 To Son He Abandoned

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(AP) A 94-year-old recluse, who cooked his own meals on a hot-plate in his $5-a-week room, left an estate of more than $50,000 to a son he abandoned 30 years ago, Public Administrator Samuel Sapowich said Saturday.

Sapowich identified the recluse as Alexander Talfourd, a native of New York City, who had lived here during his last eight years. He said Talfourd had died "broken-hearted" last week after a fruitless search in hope of obtaining forgiveness from his son, Donald, now 38 and his only heir.

He said Talfourd accumulated assets totaling more than $50,000 by farming in Canada and investing in mining and oil stocks and Canadian and U. S. government bonds.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar decorated with vases of chrysanthemums and ferns. For her wedding the bride was attired in a soft grey dress with a high round neckline and elbow length sleeves. Her accessories were black and pink and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

Attending the couple were Miss Doris Miller, sister of the bride, and Clark Elliott of Wooster. Miss Miller selected an aqua crepe dress with which she wore brown accessories and a pink rose corsage.

Mrs. Miller was dressed in a black and white crepe dress with white accessories while Mrs. Aumend wore black crepe trimmed with black sequins. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the sisters of the bridegroom, Mrs. John A. Henry and Mrs. Keith W. Daniels, Amoy-Pavona road.

Christmas Gifts From Your Kitchen

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS

(Associated Press Food Editor)

We can give food presents for Christmas this year. If we want to buy them, ready to wrap up, there is more variety of choice than we've had in a long time. There are imported delicacies to be had which will delight the heart of any of your gourmet friends, even though there may not be all the things we've been waiting for. A box of assorted spices, even though it didn't contain fine pepper, would be a good gift. An assortment of canape spreads would be another. Just go into a specialty shop or the food department of any good department store and you'll find plenty of beautiful gifts.

If you want to give home-made food presents the situation is perhaps a bit more difficult. Still there are some ways to get around the great lack of sugar, which is the worst hurdle to overcome this year. Many of us couldn't get our entire canning allotment, and therefore have had to forego the pleasure of giving the fruits of our labors to friends. Here's one way of doing something about that, though, even at this late date. Use quick-frozen fruits! In the first place, they're slightly sweetened and thus necessitate less use of sugar. And in the second place they're so easy to use that they save a great deal of time. A beginner, for instance, could make the following jam in fifteen minutes.

Peach Jam.

1 box (1 pound) quick-frozen sweetened sliced peaches
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup light corn syrup
3 tablespoons powdered fruit pectin

Thaw peaches as directed on the package. Chop very fine. Place in a large saucepan with lemon juice. Measure sugar and corn syrup and set aside.

Mix contents of powdered fruit pectin package thoroughly before measuring it. Place saucepan holding fruit over high heat. Add pectin and stir until the mixture comes to a hard boil. Add sugar mixture at once. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once. Makes about 3 six-ounces glasses.

Here's a recipe which makes a lot of cookies with only a cup of sugar.

Chocolate Cookies.

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon, and sift three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add eggs and chocolate. Beat well. Add flour, a small amount at a time, mixing well after each addition. Chill thoroughly. Roll ⅛ inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut with fancy cooky cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in moderate oven (350 degrees) 9 minutes. Makes 6 dozen 2½ inch cookies.

Snyder-Sutter.

GALION — After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Sutter who were married at the parsonage of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Saturday morning, will make their home at 420 South Union street. Rev. Father Francis X. Hermiller read the single ring ceremony.

The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sutter, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Sutter is the former Juanita Snyder of Galion. She attended the Galion schools and has been employed at the Majestic Electric company in Galion.

Mr. Sutter is a veteran of the last war and is now working at the North Electric company here.

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

The new county school superintendent liked to throw his weight around and fell into the disconcerting habit of popping suddenly into a classroom while it was in session to inspect the proceedings.

He decided that one classroom that he had visited was far too noisy and, grabbing the tallest boy by the scruff of the neck, marched him off to the principal's office.

"I'll teach you to make all that racket while class is in session," he thundered. "You just stand there in that corner for a while."

About twenty minutes later, a delegation from the classroom appeared before him. "Mr. Jones," said the spokesman. "Now that you've taken our teacher away from us, can we have the rest of the morning off?"

Career Girls Contribute Talents, Charms to Cause of World Peace

By ADELAIDE KERR
(AP Newsfeatures Writer)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—The United Nations is better known for politics than for glamor, but it isn't necessary to look far to find that it has that, too, and it also has charm. Cherchez la femme.

Among the members of the U.N. secretariat are many of the new 20th century women who have risen from the ashes of war. At first glance these girls look like smart young women you could see almost anywhere — pretty North Americans in flower-toned sweaters and blouses, slender Chinese in short-shirted versions of oriental dress, olive-skinned South Americans with liquid Latin eyes.

But watch them awhile and you will find they are different. There is less party talk and primping, more hard work for a purpose. Not that they are any less interested in men than women always are they simply seem to think and talk about them less These women hold what is probably the world's largest feminine collection of university degrees.

Many are working for far less money than they have made before on a heavy schedule that sometimes extends to 10 or 12 hours a day, six or seven days a week with a three-hour daily commutation added to that. During the general assembly they were "soaked in a bath of work" that left virtually no time for shopping, hairdresser, friends or play.

Why do they do it?

Let Marion Dix tell you. Miss Dix, a good-looking former scenario writer for Paramount and RKO, turned down $1,000 a week in Hollywood to work for $100 a week in the United Nations as chief of the film and television section which is now producing a film on the functions, purposes and goal of the United Nations.

Miss Dix says succinctly:

"If the United Nations fails, there will be no world. It must succeed. A job to help it succeed is the best job you can have right now—and no work seems too hard."

Constance Rhodes adds a few words to that. Miss Rhodes is a serene blond English girl who studied at the Paris Sorbonne, worked for the Ilo in Geneva and now has one of the topflight U.N. secretarial jobs as secretary to Andrew Cordier, right-hand man to Trygvie Lie. Says Miss Rhodes:

"This kind of work gets in your blood, once you've done it. It's fascinating meeting people of all nationalities. It would bore me now to work in an office filled only with English. And then—I don't want to sound too high minded . . . but there's a great satisfaction in working for peace. After every difficult time, we seem to have made a little progress and it makes you feel good to think you have had even a small part."

One of the toughest U.N. jobs is held by blond French-born Lucie de Vienne Blanc, head of a four-language typing pool of 200 girls, most of whom came from Europe.

Mme. de Vienne Blanc, who used to be a concert singer, keeps harmony and clock-work order while English, French, Spanish and Russian documents pass from translator to stenographer to reviser to typist to reviser, etc. She says the girls love America, like American men better than Europeans because they treat them better, are fascinated by New York shops and rejoice in pretty clothes at relatively low cost.

Circus, Wintering In Bucyrus, Preparing For 'Better' Show

BUCYRUS — The end of the war and the sale of surplus government material will mean a "bigger and better" show for the Mills Brothers Circus, which is wintering in Bucyrus at the fairgrounds, Jack Mills, co-owner announced today.

Mills said the circus is buying surplus trucks and trailers to be used as sleepers for the troupe, a new electric light plant, and a new tent for the show's menagerie.

Additional cages for wild animals also will be purchased, he asserted, as well as more animals if they are available. The brothers are now "shopping around" for the beasts.

All of the animals and some of the performers began wintering here at the close of the season after the county took back the fairgrounds from the government, which used them for Camp Millard during the war.

PAY TRIBUTE TO WAR HERO

WILLARD—The Trinity Lutheran church yesterday held a memorial and dedication service for a new neon cross on the church.

The cross was given by Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Jacobs and family in memory of their son, Vernard C. Jacobs, who lost his life on Jan. 29, 1945, while a member of the Coast Guard. He was a crew member of an ammunition ship which was sunk off Guadalcanal.

The Rev. G. C. Heffelfinger officiated at the service, which was attended by members and families of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion and World War II veterans.

Vernard, 25, enlisted in September, 1942, and was a motor machinist's mate second class. Besides his parents, he is survived by his widow, a daughter, two brothers and two sisters.

Puerto Rico was ruled by Spain until 1898, when it was ceded to the United States by the Treaty of Paris.

Jail's Fancy After Artist Serves Term

GALENA, Ill. —(INS)— It's a mighty pretty jail that the county sheriff's men show off nowadays.

The inhabitants look out through unbarred windows upon quiet pastoral scenes. On one wall, however, they are confronted with a gargantuan pink elephant.

After women are booked, they are led to the 'Bridal Suite' where they walk upon a maroon floor and a painted rug of asthetic design.

The jail got its unusual appearance after an artist was jailed for failure to deposit any money in the bank before he signed some checks.

Jailer George Herman said he "knew the man was an artist the minute I looked at him."

Herman was right. The first day of his six-month term, the artist looked the jail over and said he was disgusted. He shook back his dark, curly hair and told Herman:

"I am an artist. I am a graduate of an art institute.

"Give me some paint."

"Well, we gave him some paint," explained Herman. "After all, we hadn't had the prison painted since 1932."

First, the prisoner painted the white walls and ceilings a muted ivory.

Still dissatisfied, he painted gay rugs on the floors, covering them with purple zinnias and shy daisies.

He decided that barred windows made the jail look like a prison, so he painted "windows" overlooking pastoral scenes on the walls.

When he finished the windows, the artist still had time on his hands.

Then came the pink elephant. narrow ladder leading to an imaginary trap door in the ceiling.

Christmas, Santa Claus Postoffices Swamped

AP Newsfeatures

CHRISTMAS, Fla.—Here in a land of sunny winter days—where most people have never seen snow upon a rooftop nor heard the jingle of a sleigh bell—"Mrs. Santa Claus" has been working overtime for weeks. She is Mrs. Juanita Tucker, comely postmistress in this little community fringed by marshland, live oaks and towering palms.

People in all of the 48 states and in many foreign countries send Yule mail to her to be stamped with the "Christmas" postmark and remailed.

The Christmas, Fla., postoffice was set up June 27, 1892, just 57 years after the community was founded. Although there is a Christmas Cove in Maine, this is the only plain Christmas postoffice in the United States.

Back in 1935 a company of United States soldiers came down to help the small group of apprehensive settlers battle the Seminole Indians. On Christmas day the fort, built of cabbage palm logs, was taken over by the settlers and the name Fort Christmas came into being.

The settlers were of rugged stock, with Anglo-Saxon names like Tucker and Roberts and Barber whose descendants still dwell in this section.

"Mrs. Santa Claus" is glowingly proud of her work and her stamp. Despite the heavy rush, she sees that each piece of mail gets special attention. The official "Christmas, Fla." postmark is stamped carefully so that it will not blur. A cachet reading "Good Will Toward Men" also is stamped on the envelope.

The postoffice is in a country store on Mrs. Tucker's property. There is no railroad and the town lies a half-mile off the main highway and 25 miles from Orlando. Mail is dispatched by automobile.

This season will be one of the busiest, if not the busiest in history, Mrs. Tucker believes. By the time Christmas day rolls around she wouldn't be surprised if the outgo exceeded 150,000 pieces of mail.

"Although Christmas is just a little country village with no business center, I think it is the spirit of its people which makes it a place of beauty," the postmistress commented. "They are kind and simple folks who help each other in time of sickness or disaster. They are generous in sharing what they have with those in need."

SANTA CLAUS, Ind.—Just turned 100, Santa Claus knuckled down to a giant-sized job of postmarking Christmas letters and packages today. Besides taking on a new brood borrowed from Mother Goose. The wartime slump is over for this tiny southern Indiana hamlet, and most of the population has already gone to work on the mail mountains in the two-room post office and the toy shops that began bustling long before Thanksgiving.

Postmaster Oscar L. Phillips hopes to sandwich in enough time to get out his white-furred red suit, but he said the loads of mail coming in for Santa Claus postmarks is "far larger than ever before." Even before Thanksgiving, seven helpers were on the job handling thousands of letters and packages from toy firms, youngsters impatient for the sound of reindeer hooves and whimsical givers. Those children's "Dear Santa" letters that have return addresses are answered by the American Legion post at Tell City, Ind.

Founded in 1846 as Santa Fe, the village slumbered without distinction until 1895, when the postoffice department asked for another name, to avoid confusion with another Santa Fe in Indiana. The postal rush has grown with the years and widening popularity, but only in recent years have toy makers capitalized on the unique nome of the village.

Opened for the first time this year is a "Santa Claus Land" gift and toy shop opened by Louis J. Koch, Evansville manufacturer, with an "enchanted trail" of sculptured storybook characters—one-third of a mile long—of such notables as spider-frightened Miss Muffett, Beanstalk-climbing Jack, Little Boy Blue and Humpty-Dumpty.

Under construction is a second miniature railroad, designed with a 59-foot train to haul loads of 30 children on a blitz tour of the "Pyramids," the "Swiss Alps," the "Grand Canyon" and even across the "Atlantic Ocean."

Before the war, the Santa Claus mail volume reached half a million pieces in a one-room post office in Annie Martin's general store, and visitors came in throngs as big as 6,000 at the height of the yule season. Now, with the post office set up in its own two-room building and toy vendors reproducing the imagery of childhood, Postmaster Phillips foresees new life for Santa Claus during its second hundred years.

'Safe Christmas' Hints Are Issued By Chamber

Following up its promotion of a "safe Christmas for Mansfield," the Chamber of Commerce today released the following set of suggestions for the treatment and decoration of Yule trees:

"Your Christmas tree and the decorations on it are fire hazards which you will want to watch most carefully this Christmas. Remember when you bring a tree into your home it is going to dry up. A fresh cut tree will not take fire any more easily during the first day or two than would the evergreen shrubs growing outside, but it becomes a more serious fire hazard every hour. At the end of a week, it will be highly flammable.

Keep It Fresh.

"It is best to bring in a fresh tree as short a time before Christmas as possible. If purchased from a dealer, the tree should be left outside until the last moment before erection.

"The place in your home that you select for your tree is very important. It should be well away from stoves, radiators, and other sources of heat. It should not be near a stairway, where the tree, if ablaze, would block passage from upstairs.

"A pamphlet entitled 'Make This a Fire Safe Christmas' is available through the Chamber of Commerce. This outlines the many precautions that can be taken to eliminate chances of disaster during the Christmas season. It is urged that you get a copy of this pamphlet. Write or call 1368-6, and a copy will be mailed to you immediately.

"One of the worst hazards is the flammable costumes and clothing worn during the holiday season. A solution made by dissolving 1¼ pounds of boric acid and 1½ pounds of borax in three gallons of water and applied in the second rinsing when laundering will flame proof these garments. This solution is also recommended for children's clothing, especially flannel night clothes, drapes and curtains."

Three-Day Trial Ends In a Draw

A petition and cross petition filed by the Isaly Dairy company against Vernon Harp, Mansfield R. D. 4, in Richland county common pleas court ended in a draw after three days of argument before a jury of six men and six women at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

The jury, after several hours of deliberation, decided against the plaintiff in his petition for $2,280.73 and against the defendant in his cross petition for $25,000, by returning verdicts that both were equally negligent and responsible for the auto accident.

The crash occurred on Route 39 under snow and ice conditions on Feb. 13, 1945.

Pro Grid Gamblers Face Early Arrest

NEW YORK — (INS) — Arrest of three members of a gambling syndicate was expected momentarily today following disclosure of an attempt to bribe two New York football Giants' players to "throw" Sunday's championship game with the Chicago Bears.

Already locked up, in default of $25,000 bail was Alvin Paris, 28, a dapper young Broadway business man and alleged intermediary in the proposed "fix."

He admitted offering Merle Hapes and Frank Filchok of the Giants $7,000 to throw the game which the Bears won 24 to 14 in a rough, hard-fought contest.

National Football league club owners were called to meet this afternoon to inquire into all phases of the scandal.

No Stone Unturned.

The football bosses were determined to leave no stone unturned in a full-fledged "No-holds-barred" investigation to wipe away even the slightest trace of suspicion of any team or player.

Police were investigating whether Paris, allegedly fronting for a New Jersey gambling combine, may have reached athletes in other professional and collegiate football and basketball games.

Hapes, substitute fullback of the New York team, was declared ineligible to take part in yesterday's game. His status was expected to be determined at today's league meeting. Police preferred no charges against him.

Bets Called Off.

Filchock, who was cleared of any complicity, was allowed to play and turned in an outstanding performance, even suffering a broken nose in his eagerness to prove that he had no part in the business. There wasn't the slightest suspicious circumstance connected with the game, which was one of the roughest in the league's history.

Paris, police said confessed his syndicate had bet $20,000 on the Bears to win the game by more than 10 points. Chicago was a 10-point favorite. But no bets were collected because that turned out to be the exact margin of victory —and tie bets are declared off.

QUESTIONED IN 'FIX'—Merle Hapes, New York Giants' fullback, (right) covers his face with his hand as he leaves a police station in New York, after a night of questioning about what police and National Football league officials called an attempt to "fix" the championship playoff in New York between the Giants and Chicago Bears Hapes was suspended from playing in the game. Both he and Frank Filchock said that they had refused to accept bribes of $2,500. Alvin J.
